5. A large chemical factory was located about five kilometers south of Chirchik. This factory was under a tight security control and was said to be a secret plant since no one was permitted to talk about it. There was a spur track from the main railroad line to this plant although I did not observe what was transported. The only identification of this plant is that when the wind came from the direction of the plant, it carried considerable smoke and the air was filled with sulphur fumes.
